

About the author

Charla Miller is the founder of BeautyHealsYou.com — a website and blog that integrates emotional and physical beauty. As a makeup and hair artist she shows women how to take care of their skin and shows them how to bring out their full beauty through the use of simple makeup and hair techniques. Her website introduces different types of healing practices, skin care and makeup tips and inspiring events.

Charla started as a makeup and hair artist in Hollywood and she continues to work in film and advertising campaigns, and as an artist in global cosmetic brands. She is a premier destination wedding artist in the Boise, Idaho area and beyond.

In 2012 she created the website, NeverGiveUpMom.com as way to communicate her love and commitment to her stolen son. The site has a global following and the desire to inspire other parents and family members to start believing that the possibility of reunion exists, even in the midst of their child's absence.

After five years Charla decided it was time to write the story of reclaiming her life that led to the reunion with her stolen son. This all took place as she wrote her book, Wonder and Beauty: My Journey From Heartbreak To Healing Through The Wonder of Horses, published by Balboa Press in October 2016.

When she isn't busy in her artistry and writing endeavors she takes every opportunity to immerse herself in the healing power of horses. She is currently taking horsemanship lessons with the winner of this year's 2017 Extreme Mustang Makeover, Matt Livengood. Her intention is to turn her passion for the healing nature of horses into workshops and private sessions and to share these profound healing experiences with others. If you would like Charla to lead a Wonder and Beauty workshop, book an artistry appointment, or speak at your conference, please contact her at charlamiller.com.
